

My number one job is to create jobs for all of the people in North Carolina. I'm honored to be here today, because that's exactly what we're doing here in Camden County and Pasquotank County.

This Camden Causeway as it's known to all of us who wanted it for a lot of years – the renovation of U.S. 158 is going to make a tremendous difference to northeastern North Carolina. You all, it's one of the first infrastructure projects that's been funded with the recovery dollars, and it's exciting to think that we're doing these investments all over the state – to the east and the west, to urban cities and in small communities.

This project is a real good investment in our future.
